

CRAYFISH HELP SWAT OLD
HIGH COST OF LIVING IN LOUISIANA

BY FREDERIC E. HAMLIN

While meat prices are soaring, while federal, state and city agricultural experts are excitedly waging a backyard garden campaign during the war, and while everyone is looking for a chance to swat the fellow responsible for the high cost of living, the crayfish hunting in and around New Orleans is going merrily on.

Some day thousands of working families of the Crescent City journey in wagons or afoot to the crayfish hunting grounds, bordering on the lakes or bayous of picturesque Louisiana.

By the baskets the crayfish are caught, crustaceans in the cheapest

FRENCH FINANCES STILL HOLD OUT

PARIS, July 28.—French finance has been unshaken by the war for the opinion expressed to The Associated Press by Charles Gide, of the University of Paris, an eminent authority on economic questions, discussing the outlook at the beginning of the fourth year of the conflict.

France," said M. Gide, "has spent about 600,000,000 francs on two years' military effort. Yet in the third and sixth month of hostilities, the French treasury is investing in short-term bonds as freely as they were two years ago, that is, at the rate of about 1,000,000,000 a month."

As evidence of the intelligence of General G. G. Gide pointed to the co-operation of the United States, which, he said, "brings formidable aid to France and her allies. This," he continued, "not only removes all doubt

MEALTIME "SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

America's fighting boys took their appetites to France with them, and they await with much eagerness the bugle call to "chuck," which these men, photographed in France, are blowing. America has aroused interest in France. Each man is allowed daily the following rations, which amount to 20 ounces of fresh beef daily, or 12 ounces of bacon, or 16 ounces of canned meat; 16 ounces of condensed milk; 16 ounces of hard bread, or flour or beans; 20 ounces ligerents. Mr. Gide said: "I do not think any country will be ruined by the war. All are more or less in the same situation as regards their resources in what they pay abroad. The best expenditure is that which might be made in the form of the transfer of money from the pockets of some citizens to the pockets of others. A nation that has many great fortunes have been built up but in which the real riches of the country have been left in the hands of a few."

Referring to the economic measures to be taken after the war and to the companies that will be formed to produce the economic means to rule her economically, Mr. Gide said:

"The talk of an economic war after the war will lay down their arms has almost subsided. I consider it neither possible nor useful. Germany will be crushed commercially. She will be vanquished on the battlefield. Her military power will be broken. She will be free to work out her own economic destiny."

AMATEUR FARMERS ARE VERY SUCCESSFUL

According to present indications, the amateur farmers of the city will help greatly this fall in the reduction of the high cost of living, for across the land have been planted under the supervision of George Upton, agent for the Lowell farm bureau and the crops are coming along very nicely.

In the early part of the season several large tracts of land were divided into lots of 5000 square feet and after the land had been plowed, harrowed and fertilized, the lots were rented for the minimum sum of $1.00 and in many instances the seed was thrown in free.

Here is the number of lots disposed of in this manner and their locations as follows: Parlier and Powell, three lots, 33 lots; near the Moody street school, 30 lots; Lowell Textile school grounds, 17 lots; near the street, 15 lots; Pleasant 9 lots; Newlwyn street, 3 lots; Middlesex Village, 16 lots. In addition to these various lots are the converted city gardens and the tillers of the land are now reaping in the result of their work.

Very interesting to see so many large tracts of land, some of which are in the heart of the city, graced with vegetables of all kinds. The men, women and children at work on their respective lots. Some of the amateur farmers have been in their gardens as early as 6 o'clock in the morning and after toiling at their regular work, they return to the potato patch or the corn field.

In some places the gardeners confined themselves to the planting of potatoes, but others included string beans, onions, cucumbers, tomatoes, squashes, corn, lettuce, cabbage, turnips, pumpkins, etc.

One of the finest lots in the city was that planted by Henry St. Galsais, Riverside street, which is now the site of the Lowell school grounds near Riverside and Moody streets. Mr. St. Galsais in the early season was badly handicapped by the weather, although he has been doing the hard work to clear his land of the dry, rank grass and now one of the finest varieties of garden vegetables, such as alfalfa grass, grew abundance. Mr. Upton made a tour of the various gardens Thursday and he reported every one in the pink of color. "Of course," he said, "the plague has struck Lowell, but I think it is very doubtful if it will be possible to combat it, I believe we will get the best of it." I was informed that there were no lice in the garden that had st. afternoon at the Warehans at Mammoth road Woodward avenue and yesterday supplied the gardeners with water to get busy with the hose and spray thoroughly the potato plants. Some of the lice were seen on potato plants in the school, and precautions were taken to check the plague. I would advise the amateur farmers to keep a good supply of the sprayer for the year in working in the garden after finding the slightest sign of lice."

Mr. Upton is well satisfied with the work of the farm bureau in Lowell and he said he believes that the people who took lots and cultivated them were not regretting the money they had spent in the work performed, for while they are harvesting their supply of vegetables for the year they are saving the money for their health in working in the garden.

Appropos of amateur farmers and home gardens it may be said that food conserving on plans to open a canning station in Lowell, and although plans have not yet been perfected it is probable that the station will be located at the war work headquarters in Merrimack street. Miss Michael is chairman of the sub-committee in charge and she hopes the station will be in operation sometime next week. It is proposed to have all the facilities for canning at the station and also to see arrange the place so as to care for nine people at the same time. Further particulars concerning the station will be announced when the station is completed.

WAR MAY PREVENT THE WORLD'S SERIES

CHICAGO, July 23.—There is likely to be no world's series this year as a result of the drain on major league baseball players by the draft, Dan Johnson, president of the American league said here last night on his radio broadcast.

He said that tabulations of draft numbers held by players showed that approximately 35 men would be taken from the American league and that the American league would not play the series if handicapped by so serious a loss.

The league president also stated that he had learned that the military drilling installed by the league early in the season would not be extended to ball players until the end of the season. His information, Mr. Johnson declared, was that the ball players would be drafted in the fall.

An interview by the American league president in New York urging ball players not to claim exemptions, gave rise to suggestions that the major league president was not taking the proper decision, that the draft would result in recalling to the major leagues many men now playing in the minors who once were stars of the major leagues.

The second division clubs and smaller leagues will suffer more from the draft, it was pointed out, than the larger clubs. The younger players now being tried out in the small and the second divisions will suffer a larger percentage loss by the draft.

"I sincerely hope that ball players in both major and minor leagues who have been drafted will give up the idea of claiming exemption," Mr. Johnson said.

SOCIETY FOR AMERICAN PREPAREDNESS

Lowell and neighboring branches of the Special Aid society for American Preparedness held a convention at the home of Mrs. William P. White, Mansur street yesterday. The meeting was attended by delegates from this city, Ayer, Shirley and Attleboro. The speakers stated all day a considerable business was transacted.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. White, chairman of the local branch of the society, and the principal speaker was Miss Estia Ann Barre, field secretary of the society. She made very interesting talk and covered the general field of special work, showing how it differs from Red Cross organization. In the course of her address Miss Barre said that while there are very-often people who think Special Aid societies in Lowell where there are no Red Cross chapters, should have a joint committee of the Red Cross and Special Aid, order to secure co-operation.

Miss Barre stated that the society "has now 16,900 members in 15 states, representing 35 branches, and the special aid workers are now going out all over the world. The society is paying for French lessons for nurses and for supplying essential articles for the aviation corps that the government does not supply."

Miss Barre told of the work done by the society in getting subscriptions for the French Red Cross, and urged her listeners to supply the camp at Ayer with candy, jam and so on and also to open a mandarin tent at the camp.

Mrs. Francis Moore exhibited a beautifully decorated dress cooker, with sheet of instructions how to make and use it, as a measure toward conservation of food.

The other speakers were Mrs.

HOW LADIES HELP

The national authorities, headed by Secretary of Agriculture David Houston (No. 2 in the pictures), are appealing to America's housewives to help to win the war by saving as much food as possible." The agricultural department and the departments, bureaus, colleges, experiment stations, etc., of the states are sending broadcast directions for home canning, preserving and drying. All persons are urged to have as much food as possible

EXEMPTION BOARDS WORK ON LISTS

The master lists from Washington were received by the local exemplar boards on Monday afternoon and early afternoon. Afterward three of the boards went into session, while the fourth met in the evening, and work was begun on the task of naming the candidates in the order in which they are to be summoned for examination on the first call.

It was expected that the names and addresses of those who first are required to appear before the boards for examination in each district would be made available to the public. Atty. Charles W. Mulcahy of Boston yesterday gave an opinion to that effect that it would be a violation of the regulations to make such a disclosure. The regulations direct that the first duty of the boards is to make a complete list of the available men of

AUXETOPHONE DEMONSTRATE

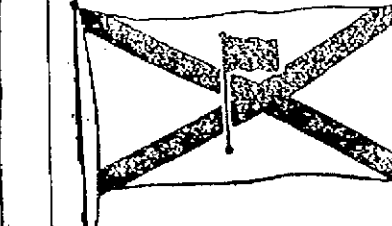

An auxetophone concert was given on the South common yesterday afternoon under rather unfavorable conditions. The fact that the elements and storm interfered in no measurable way and the music failed to carry as far as was expected.

The Auxetophone is in reality a Victrola equipped with a motor which pumps air into a chamber and produces passages through the reeds. The sound is blown into the horn which is supposed to throw the sound a considerable distance. Machines of this type are used in many cities where they are public playgrounds and it was with the intention of making the purchase of satisfactory machines could be obtained that the park commissioners out the musical apparatus yesterday. The park commissioners thought that with an instrument of this kind daily concerts could be given on the playgrounds throughout the city.

When given its first tryout in the city a week or more ago the sound could not be heard any further than the sound of the ordinary Victrola and yesterday the big sounding board which was used at the armory by President Taft spoke clearly, and placed over the machine in the bandstand, it failed to send the sound more than 200 yards. Later an ordinary Victrola was used under the same conditions and it proved more satisfactory.

Ishii also said that by Japan taking up the task of protecting American interests in the Pacific the American fleet would be free for transfer to the Atlantic, where it would move in full force.

The article will also discuss the prospect of co-operation with the United States in furnishing ammunition and war supplies to the allies.

A BRAVE ATTEMPT

ELECTRIC STORM DOES MUCH DAMAGE

The longest period of continued hot weather in years was broken yesterday afternoon by a heavy electrical storm, which practically deluged the city. The downpour of rain was terrific, the thunder claps ear-splitting and the lightning flashes dazzling. In reality there were several storms between 2 and 4:30 o'clock for the flash of lightning and roar of thunder and downpour of rain would cease for a short time, only to appear and then a little later another storm would break over the city. The storms, however, broke the period of intense heat, accompanied by a high percentage of humidity that has prevailed in this vicinity, and last night was cool and comfortable.

Considerable damage was done by the storm, however. Crops were ruined or damaged by the heavy rain, hail and wind, hundreds of streets, especially those in the hilly sections of the city, were washed out and many cellars were flooded. Several buildings in and about Lowell were struck by lightning, several fires occurred as a result, the worst in this vicinity being on the Loon Hill road in Dracut. Telephone, telegraphic and electric services were crippled. Chimneys were blown down, trees uprooted, roofs removed, and it became so dark at times during the storm that it was necessary to resort to the use of electric lights in order to carry on business. At the noon hour today it was learned that more than 1000 telephones are out of order.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon dark clouds began to gather in the north, west, over the town of Dracut, and shortly afterwards the wind started to blow and kept increasing in velocity. Then came a violent shower of hail, the hail being deafening, while the flashes of light were very sharp. The rain started to descend in torrents and, aided by the strong wind, swept through the streets in variable sheets. After half an hour of cannonading and downpour of rain there was a slight let-up, but it was very short and then there was another heavy rain which continued until shortly before 4 o'clock. After a brief spell of what appeared to be clearing weather, the sun reappeared, but it remained out but a short time when the clouds began to gather again, and another heavy downpour, attended by thunder and lightning was in order. This continued until about 4:30 o'clock when the clouds cleared and the sun burst forth again and the storm was at an end.

The barn of Frank Mayo on Loon Hill road in Dracut was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. The Mayo residence, which is a two-story building, has been destroyed but for the assistance rendered by a portion of the Lowell fire department which was sent to the scene.

The house of W. W. Lewis at 1618 Bridge street, Dracut, was struck by lightning. Mrs. Lewis, who was attending to her household duties, was stunned for several minutes by the shock, but she succeeded in extinguishing a slight fire which was started by the lightning.

Three hundred lines in the telephone exchange were put out of commission, and many of the telephones of the Bay State Street Railway Co. were also damaged by the storm. Repair men were kept busy all night in the night repairing damage done.

There were no cats from Woburn after the storm. It was reported that the damage between Woburn and Billerica caused the temporary closing of the line. The Nashua and Lawrence lines also had their difficulties. The most serious storm accident affecting the railway lines was at Woburn's turn-off, where a tree which had been rooted a tree which fell across the track and broke the trolley wires. On the Massachusetts Northeastern lines the power was shut off during the storm.

One charge of lightning struck the earth near the South Lowell plant of the U. S. Cartridge Co., shattering a number of the windows and causing the loss of employees of the shipping department. The latter, however, was not seriously injured, and revived after treatment.

At Ayer, the Sixth regiment infantry company drill when the storm broke at Camp Devens, and the men lost no time in seeking shelter beneath the nearby pyramidal tents.

At the home of Sarah M. Webster, 110 Sixth street, a bolt hit the chimney and knocked off bricks, but did little other damage. Joseph F. Fay's house at 106 Mt. Pleasant street also received a visit from lightning, it striking the chimney. At the residence of C. H. Hubbard, 62 Brookings street, the chimney was struck and slates were loosened on the roof.

When the second instalment of the storm arrived, a bolt struck the house of W. A. Evison, 21 Aberdeen street. One side of the roof was partly stripped and shingles and a ceiling also were slightly damaged. Mrs. Evison, who was alone in the house at the time, received a severe shock but was not otherwise injured.

Ed C. Church carried the insurance on the following places damaged yes:

The residence of Francis Callahan on Willard street, Dracut, was struck by lightning about 4:30 o'clock and but for the assistance rendered by the members of the fire department the building might have been destroyed. The lightning struck the eel of the house and the blaze was working its way through the roof when discovered.

Word was telephoned to this city and those 12 responded. When the city was notified the blaze was already through the roof, but they succeeded in extinguishing the flames before much damage was done.

Light Pole on Fire

At 8:55 o'clock last night Hero 12 was called to the corner of Lakeview avenue and Fulton street to extinguish a fire on an electric light pole.

LOWELL'S PUBLIC MARKET
Continued

Richardson was given second position. Once the men got their positions they were entitled to hold them day and night, were not allowed to take up any other position. Although it had been planned to charge a small fee for the space privilege this will not go into effect until later when there are a sufficient number of dealers on hand to warrant it.

The first housekeeper to arrive at the market was Mrs. Butler Ames, who came before 6 o'clock. Among some of the other early visitors were Mayor O'Donnell, Commissioner of the market, Supt. Welch, John W. Keenan of the park department, Warren Riddan, dealer of weights and measures, Mrs. James H. Carmichael and others. The market is under the direction and supervision of the public safety department of which Mayor O'Donnell is the head. Two police officers, Supt. Welch and Supt. H. McElroy, were stationed at the market this morning and they co-operated with the dealers in explaining the aims and objects of the market. The Lowell women's unit of the council of national defense of which Mrs. Butler Ames is chairman, is particularly interested in the market as it will help greatly in the present campaign for food conservation. Among the very active workers on the local committee are Mrs. James H. Carmichael and she is very confident that the market will prove a big success. Much of the produce which the gardeners and farmers will bring to the market would otherwise be thrown away on account of their being not ready to sell it. But with the campaign for food conservation in mind, but little doubt that the producers will be able to sell all that they raise directly to the consumers at a reduced price. The dealers are quoting prices quite a little below those at the stores and there was hardly a complaint on the price question this morning.

The dealers are quoting prices which are offered for sale is of the freshness. Purchasers may be certain that everything which they buy is of the best obtainable quality, because it comes directly from the gardens and farms. To look at the trucks and wagons this morning one would think that the vegetables were just picked for an agricultural exhibition. Purchasers have to bring their own market receptacles as the dealers do not supply bags or wrapping paper of any sort. There were many market baskets on Lowell's streets today.

In conversation with a Sun reporter this morning Mr. G. W. Trull spoke enthusiastically of the prospect for the market. He said that the present time was rather inconvenient for many of the farmers to come to the city for their goods, but that the opportunity to sell produce directly to the people was one which appealed to the farmers. He said that the market was longer time to get rid of a load of produce than if it were sold in wholesale quantities to the storekeepers. Mr. Trull said that the market was more certain and the producers would be sure of a market for all the goods they wished to sell. By charging a price for the market, he felt that the farmers would be able to make a satisfactory profit.

A street was a lively place today and the activity started in early. At 7 o'clock there was a number of automobiles lined up on Merrimack street and the dealers began to unload their supply of vegetables. Every variety of receptacle was present from the auto itself down to the aprons of women who lived nearby. Not did the women have the fun all to themselves. Many a bewhiskered gentleman trotted away with an inviting looking cucumber or bunch of radishes sticking out of his coat pocket. As the morning wore on the number of dealers increased and by noon the activity was at its height when the mill employees appeared.

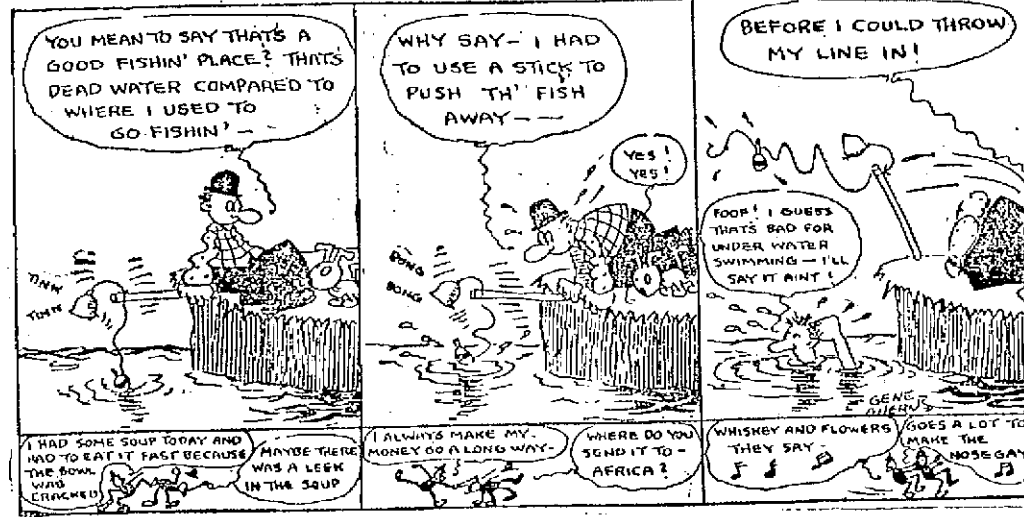

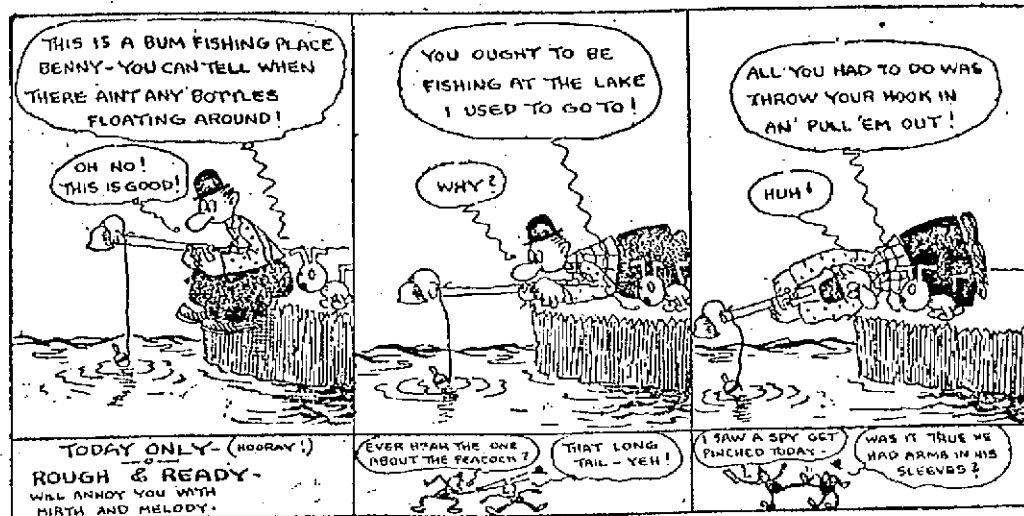

An interesting incident occurred this morning when a lady who could speak only French appeared on the scene and asked the dealers to sell her some of the produce. The dealers were unable to understand her, it looked for a while as though the transaction would fall through, but Mrs. Butler Ames and Mrs. James H. Carmichael came to the rescue by interpreting the desires of the woman. As a result the good lady went away with her arms full of vegetables and a gratified expression on her face.

It is planned to hold market days twice a week, Wednesdays and Saturdays. It is doubtful, however, if there will be any activity on Wednesdays after the noon hour.

The dealers had all the seasonable vegetables for sale this morning and one, but the variety will probably be increased as the market gets in running order. For today's venture was merely an experiment. From every angle, nevertheless, the affair may be said to be wholly successful.

Meeting Tuesday Night

Mrs. Butler Ames stated this morning that she was well satisfied with the public market opening, but believes that the proposition will not receive very substantial support until after Thursday night, when a meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock and will be presided over by Mayor James B. O'Donnell.

MAYBE IT WAS IN A FISH STORE

Progress in Quincy
Mr. H. W. Morrill, superintendent of the city of Quincy public vegetable market, has sent Mayor O'Donnell a newspaper containing an interesting account of the progress made by the market in the city and will be President of the market.

"Quincy public market, opened for its second day on the Adams Academy grounds at 7 o'clock this morning and during the early hours of the morning the various dealers did a rushing business."

It was but a few minutes past 7 o'clock when the first teams loaded with vegetables began to arrive and these men found plenty of customers waiting for them. Some were so anxious to get the first choice of the vegetables that they could hardly wait until the teams were unloaded and the vegetables placed on the booths. "Thirty or forty women were on hand for the opening, and they were a constant stream coming and going with baskets on their arms all of the morning. Not only were there many women who walked to the market, but a number of automobiles were lined up on Hancock and Dimmock streets, and from the very first trading was brisk."

"Saturday the supply of vegetables was not large enough to meet the demand and while the market was supposed to remain open until 10 o'clock, 6:30 saw everybody sold out and the market closed for the day. In addition to the vegetables someone with an eye to business saw to it that there was a supply of baskets on hand so that those not provided with bags to carry their purchases home could for a small sum become the owner of a pretty basket, which after serving its purpose of transporting vegetables, would make an attractive work or waste paper basket for the home."

"The other was another enterprising man who understood the women's love for flowers had a number of flowering geraniums on hand and these also sold readily."

LOCAL MEN JOIN MOUNTED
MILITARY POLICE

Jarlett R. Dacey, of 176 Andover street and John J. Walsh of 771 Westford street have enlisted in Troop A of the mounted military police attached to the headquarters train of the Pennsylvania division of the federal army. This is an entirely new branch of the service and is comprised chiefly of Philadelphia mounted city and state police. The mounted police have always been noted for their daring and bravery and it is an especial honor to Lowell to have these two men members of the unit.

Both young men are well known in Lowell and are graduates of the Lowell high school. They have been employed in the Eddystone Ammunition corporation and claim that they might be exempted from the draft on this ground. However, they preferred to do the "bit" and joined the mounted police. Walsh was formerly a member of Co. G of the National Guard in this city, and his brother is at present a member of Co. K. August 5 the division of which the Lowell men are members will move to August, for encampment. Another Lowell boy who has joined the service from the Quaker city is Joseph L. Doyle, a member of the local council of the Knights of Columbus. Doyle has enlisted in the naval aeronautic service and has been assigned to the training school at Pensacola, Fla., where he is now stationed.

The regular army recruiting officers held another rally in Merrimack square last evening and Capt. John A. Pearson was among the speakers. The efforts were fairly successful, although the officers complain that it is much harder to draw a crowd in Lowell than in other cities where they have worked. Nevertheless, the recruiting campaign will continue and it is hoped that a large crowd will turn out this evening. Capt. Pearson has a reputation as a speaker and is well worth hearing. The following men were sent from Lowell to Ft. Slocum, N. Y. this morning: Harold D. Connell, Ayer; morning: Stuart, Graniteville; Joseph A. Heroux, Graniteville; Antonio Lizaso, Westford; James H. Duff, 4 Davis square; Robert Walsh, 1 Madison place; Benjamin R. Rogers, 108 Blossom street; Eugene W. Chene, 114 Cabot street; Fred Willett, Brookside; Edward F. Hart, 210 Cross street. It is expected that a number of Lowell men in the Sixth regiment companies will visit Lowell this evening and tomorrow as leave has been granted to many of them. Men are still wanted for Co. K. Ellis L. Stubbs, giving his address as Oakland, Fla., was accepted at the naval station this morning as machinist's mate.

Third Year of War Closes
With Fortunes of Conflict
Favoring the Entente

The third year of the world war closes with the fortunes of conflict favoring the entente. Except for the uncertainty as to the outcome of the Russian situation, the central powers sustained momentous setbacks, both military and political, during the 12 months.

On the western front in Europe the Teutons had themselves on the defensive at the advent of the fourth year. They fight on lines nowly established after forced retirement from terrain which they had won in earlier days at a tremendous sacrifice. Meanwhile new enemy powers, notably the United States, have been drawn in by the central powers and progress toward the achievement of the ultimate aim of the entente and its allies has been furthered by political disturbance which will remain memorable in the history of all times.

Fall of Two Crowned Heads
Chief among these are the fall of two crowned heads—Nicholas of Russia and Constantine of Greece. In Russia autocracy has given way to a republic. In Greece a kingdom remains but not a pro-Teutonic one, entente pressure having won supremacy in this part of the Balkans.

ANOTHER CONTINGENT OF
U. S. TROOPS ARRIVE

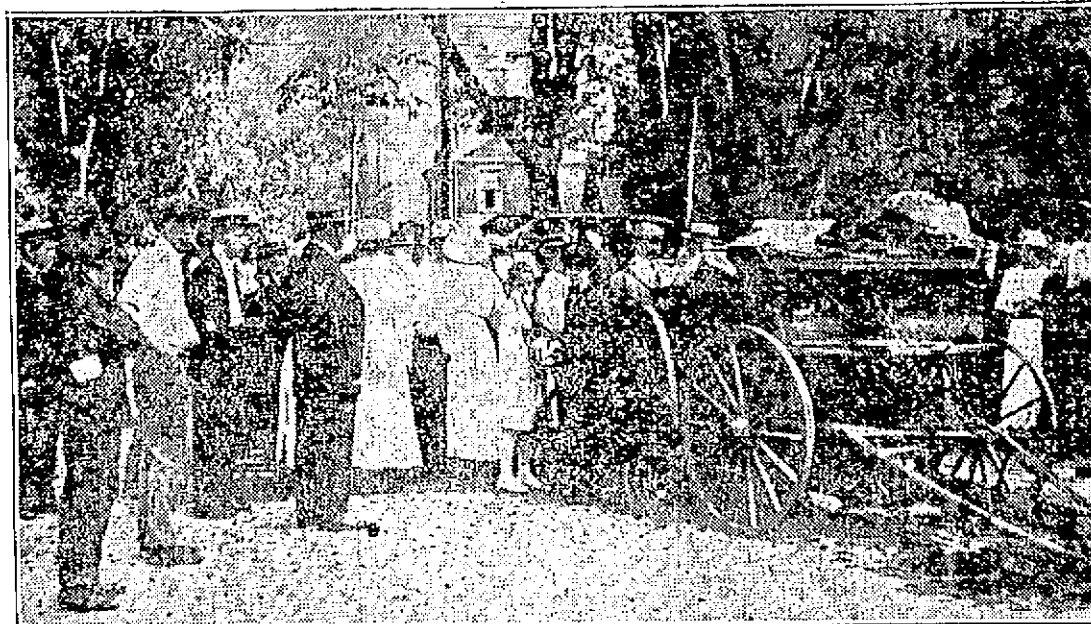

AN EUROPEAN PORT, July 28.—Another American contingent has safely arrived and disembarked. The American troops arrived by the same steamer as that on which Kermit Roosevelt, his wife and child traveled. When tenders went alongside the vessel Friday the men were in high spirits and frequently shouted "We are downhanded!" which was answered with a cheering "no" given with great enthusiasm.

Representatives of the general staff watched the disembarkation. There was no civic demonstration. Only a few spectators knew of the landing. These cheered and the troops cheered back. The men entrained quickly and left for their new quarters. A signal company remained at the port for some hours and these were the only representatives of the contingent which the public saw.

"Amexes" Name of U. S. Troops
PARIS, July 28.—The American troops in France have chosen their own sobriquet, according to the Matin today, adopting the name "Amexes." This was formed by joining together the first two letters of the words "American expedition" in a manner similar to that adopted in forming the word "Amazac," by which the Australian and New Zealand troops in the British forces are known.

Lowell's Public Vegetable
Market Opened in Anne
Street Today

EARLY MORNING SCENE AT PUBLIC MARKET

The Lowell municipal market opened in Anne street this morning at six o'clock. Perfect weather conditions attended the debut, and from the very start the success of the venture was assured. There was not the slightest disorder of any sort and the greatest co-operation between the buyers and dealers was evident.

To Carl Perham of Chelmsford went the honor of being the first farmer to appear with his truck of vegetables, ready for business. On account of a misunderstanding as to the method of selling certain vegetables which are vended by weight, Mr. Perham decided to postpone his opening until later. The law requires that the dealers have scales on their wagons or trucks if they wish to sell certain vegetables and Mr. Perham unfortunately had failed to bring his scales. He had been accustomed to sell his goods in wholesale quantities, and for this reason did not have the necessary facilities.

G. W. Trull of Tewksbury and J. C. Richardson of Danvers arrived about 8:10 almost simultaneously and were assigned the first two spaces. Mr.

Trull brought a produce wagon with him, while Mr. Richardson's goods were displayed on an auto truck. To these two men goes the credit of officially opening the Lowell municipal market. As the farmers came in with wagons and trucks, the market was filled with horses and a parking place was provided for the animals farther down on Anne street beyond the high school. The arrangement of giving out the spaces was under a first-come-first-served policy, and G. W. Trull was given the first position at the corner of Anne and Merrimack streets. Mr. Richardson followed him. Mr. Continued to Page Four—First Section things which must be explained before the origin of the war is fully understood.

According to the Times Informant a meeting was held at Potsdam, those attending being the emperor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, Admiral von Tirpitz, Gen. von Falkenhayn, Dr. Wilhelm von Stumm, under-secretary for foreign affairs, Archduke Frederick of Austria, Count von Berchtold, Austrian foreign minister, Count Tisza, Premier of Hungary and Gen. Hostendörfer. They decided all the principal points of the Austrian ultimatum to be despatched to Serbia. Fifteen days later it was recognized that Russia probably would refuse to submit to the demands and that war would result, but the meeting definitely decided to accept that consequence.

The emperor then went to Norway with the objective, says the writer, of throwing dust into the eyes of the French and Russian governments. Later when it became known that England would not remain neutral, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg wished to withdraw, but it was too late.

SOCIALIST MEMBER OF REICHSTAG TALKS
COPENHAGEN, July 28.—Philip Scheidemann, socialist member of the reichstag, gave yesterday the views of the socialists on their participation in the government. Herr Scheidemann said that it really a parliamentary government were formed with a program which the socialists could approve they must participate and share the responsibility. If, however, members of the reichstag were only to become subordinates to under-secretaries and chancellors they would not accept the invitation to participate.

Herr Scheidemann said it was necessary to defend Germany against Russia as long as it was an enemy but the socialist did not desire to see the fall of the revolution. The socialist Galician retreat involved the Russian soldier and the masses in frightful sufferings. The socialist government was able to assign the responsibility for this enormous misfortune to the socialists of another school.

Herr Scheidemann said that Premier Lloyd George's suspicion that Germany was in a hand on Belgium was unfounded, because this is incompatible with the reichstag resolution.

In the west, while there is no corresponding allied advance, there is at least an absence of German progress. The crown prince is the aggressive force at present, as he has been for some time past, but his liberal sacrifices of his troops are not gaining him any ground of consequence. Last night he met with complete check in a renewal of his offensive on the Alsace front. The French lines were not penetrated in the whole field of the attack, which took in a considerable number of the Chemin des Dames, and Paris reports his losses as extremely heavy.

Heavy Fire From German Guns
The British report a heavy fire from the German guns on the front from near the Belgian border to the coast. Evidences accumulate that the German crown prince is in the aggressive force at present, as he has been for some time past, but his liberal sacrifices of his troops are not gaining him any ground of consequence. Last night he met with complete check in a renewal of his offensive on the Alsace front. The French lines were not penetrated in the whole field of the attack, which took in a considerable number of the Chemin des Dames, and Paris reports his losses as extremely heavy.

German Women at Front

STRIKE EFFECTIVE ON RAILROADS
CHICAGO, July 28.—Freight traffic in the Chicago switching district was seriously hampered today by the strike of switchmen affiliated with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen employed on 19 railroads.

Representatives of the railroad managers' conference committee asserted that more than 25 per cent of a working force were working and no serious results were expected.

The employees declared that fully 95 per cent of the railroad's switching force had quit work. A feature of the strike was the alignment of the Switchmen's union of America, affiliated with the American Federation, with the railroad men of St. Louis, that union remained at work and the railroads declared they were acting in filling the places of the strikers.

INFORMATION FOR THOSE ON DRAFT LIST

Hundreds of young men call at city hall daily for the purpose of ascertaining just how they stand on the draft list, and others, who are still ignorant of the fact that each exemption board has headquarters of its own, call at the war work office in Merrimack street in an endeavor to get their serial numbers. During the past few days the young woman in charge of the latter office has been deluged with inquiries of all descriptions concerning the draft. The members of the exemption boards wish it known that it is useless for anyone to try to secure information for the boards are working on the lists and it will be a few days before things are in shape. The boards meet daily in their respective quarters and a call on them simply means a delay in the work. As soon as the lists are ready and this may be next Tuesday they will be posted and later the men to appear before the boards for physical examination will receive an official notice to that effect, stating the date, time and place for them to report.

ADDITIONAL TAXES OF TWO BILLION

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The additional $7,000,000,000 in this year's war expense probably will be met by imposing additional taxes of $2,000,000,000 and authorizing $5,000,000,000 in credits according to a tentative and informal decision today by the senate financial committee. While deferring final decision, the committee was said to be overwhelmingly in favor of raising only about $2,000,000,000 of the additional revenues by taxation and resuming consideration of the bill, discussing what sources shall be touched to increase its revenue to the $2,000,000,000 figure.

While every effort will be made to expedite revision of the bill, committee members said their work might take most of next week. Various amendments were suggested today. One was to increase the present normal tax rate on incomes of two per cent to five or six per cent. Increased the pending rates 76 per cent excess profits also was regarded certain and increase of consumption taxes on sugar, tea and coffee also were proposed.

After a short, sharp battle the fire was placed under control and the damage confined to the room where the fire started.

The death penalty was invoked a number of times by the military and the provisional government in order to induce a policy of "blood and iron" in an effort to avert disaster.

On August 23, 1918, the Austro-Hungarian army entered the Vojna region there was little resistance from the Russian troops.

With dramatic swiftness the Third Army, under the Duke of Austria, captured Gorizia, Italy, considered impregnable. By Jan. 1, 1919, the Austrians had captured 120,000 square miles.

In the Trentino the Italians took offensive in June and after three days' fighting captured the Austrian positions on Monte Ortigara and Anello p. These they were forced to recapture, however, in the face of Austrian counterattacks.

The Balkans: The year's military development saw the occupation of Serbia by the Germans—a gain of great economic value because of the oil in the grain fields. Germany continued to rely on U-boats. This policy led to unrestricted warfare which drew the United States into the war.

U-boats destroyed an estimated score of 4,000,000 tons of shipping the year ending 2,000,000 tons, flying the British flag sunk from Feb. 25, to July 1.

The German destroyer flotilla arrived in British waters in May. Without the loss of a ship or a man, the flotilla sank 13 British and 11 American troops to France. # ELECTRIC STORM DOES MUCH DAMAGE

The longest period of continued hot weather in years was broken yesterday afternoon by a heavy electrical storm, which practically deluged the city. The downpour of rain was terrific, the lightning claps ear-splitting and the thunder claps deafening. In reality there were several storms between 2 and 4.30 o'clock for the flash of lightning and roar of thunder and downpour of rain would cease for a short time, the sun reappear and then a little later another storm would break over the city. The storms, however, broke the period of intense heat, accompanied by a high percentage of humidity that has prevailed in this vicinity, and last night was cool and comfortable.

Considerable damage was done by the storm, however. Crops were ruined or damaged by the heavy rain, hail and wind, hundreds of streets, especially those in the hilly sections of the city, were washed out and many cellars were flooded. Several buildings in and about Lowell were struck by lightning, several fires occurred as a result, the worst in this vicinity being on the town of Hildreth, where a telephone exchange, telegraph office and trolley services were crippled. Chimneys were blown down, trees uprooted, roofs removed, and it became so dark at times during the storm that it was necessary to resort to the use of electric lights in order to carry on business. At the noon hour today it was learned that more than 1000 telephones are out of order in the city. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon dark clouds began to gather in the northwest, over the town of Dracut, and shortly afterwards the wind started to blow and kept on blowing in the city. Then came the thunder and lightning, the claps being deafening, while the rain started to descend in torrents, no, aided by the streets in veritable sheets. After half an hour of cannoning and downpour of rain there was a slight let-up, but it was very short and then the storm broke out again, which continued until shortly before 4 o'clock. After a brief spell of what appeared to be clearing weather, the sun reappeared, but it remained only a short time when the clouds began to gather again, and another heavy downpour attended by thunder and lightning was in order. This continued until about 4.30 o'clock when the clouds cleared away and the sun shone forth again and the storm was at an end.

The barn of Frank Malt on Loon Hill road in Dracut was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. In the city, residences as well as other buildings in the vicinity, would in all probability have been destroyed but for the assistance rendered by a portion of the Lowell fire department which was sent to the scene.

The house of W. W. Lewis at 1615 Bridge street, Dracut, was struck by lightning. Mrs. Lewis, who was attending to her household duties, was struck for a few minutes by the shock but she succeeded in extinguishing a slight fire which was started by the lightning.

Hundred lines in the telephone exchange were put out of commission, and many of the telephones of the Bay State Street Railway Co. were also damaged by the storm. Repairs were kept busy until late in the night repairing damage done.

There were no cars from Woburn after the storm. It was reported that the damage between Woburn and the city was so great that the temporary tie-up in the line. The Nashua and Lawrence lines also had their difficulties. The most serious storm accident, affecting the railway line was at Woburn, where lightning uprooted a tree which fell across the track and broke the trolley wires. On the Massachusetts Northern line the power was shut off during the storm.

One charge of lightning struck the earth near the South Lowell plant of the U. S. Cartridge Co., shattering a number of the windows and breaking the supply of employees of the shipping department. The latter, however, was not seriously injured, and revived after treatment.

At Ayer, the Sixth regiment infantry companies were just returning from company drill when the storm broke at Camp Devens, and the men lost no time in seeking shelter beneath the rocky Pyramid of Sarah M. Webster.

At the home of Sarah M. Webster, 116 Sixth street, a bolt hit the chimney and knocked off bricks, but did little other damage. Joseph E. Fay's house at 100 Mt. Pleasant street, received a visit from lightning, it striking the chimney. At the residence of C. H. Hibbard, 62 Brookings street, the chimney was struck and tiles were loosened.

When the second installment of the storm arrived, a bolt struck the house of W. A. Evison, 21 Aberdeen street. One side of the roof was partly struck, and a single tile ending on the second floor was slightly damaged. Mrs. Evison, who was alone in the house at the time, received a severe shock but was not otherwise injured.

LOWELL'S PUBLIC MARKET

Richardson was given second position. Once the men got their positions they were entitled to hold them all day and were not allowed to take up any other position. Although it had been planned to charge a small fee for the privilege this will not go into effect until later when there are a sufficient number of dealers on hand to warrant it.

The first housekeeper to arrive at the market was Mrs. Butler Ames, who came before 6 o'clock. Among some of the other early arrivals were Mayor O'Donnell, Commissioner Warnock, Supt. Welch, Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department, Warren Hildreth, sealer of weights and measures, Mrs. James J. Carmichael and others.

The market is under the direction and supervision of the public safety department, of which Mayor O'Donnell is chairman. Two police officers, William H. Grady and Samuel H. McDermott, were stationed at the market this morning and they cooperated with the dealers in the maintaining the atmosphere of the new venture. The Lowell women's unit of the council of national defense, of which Mrs. O'Donnell is president, is particularly interested in the market as it is felt that it will help greatly in the present campaign for food conservation.

Among the active workers on the local committee is Mrs. James H. Carmichael and she is very confident that the market will prove a big success. She said that the market will be a success because it comes directly from the gardens and farms. To look at the trucks and wagons this morning and would think that the vegetables had been especially picked for an agricultural exhibition. Purchasers have to bring their own baskets, receptacles to carry the goods, and supply bags or wrapping paper of any sort. There were many market baskets on Lowell's streets today.

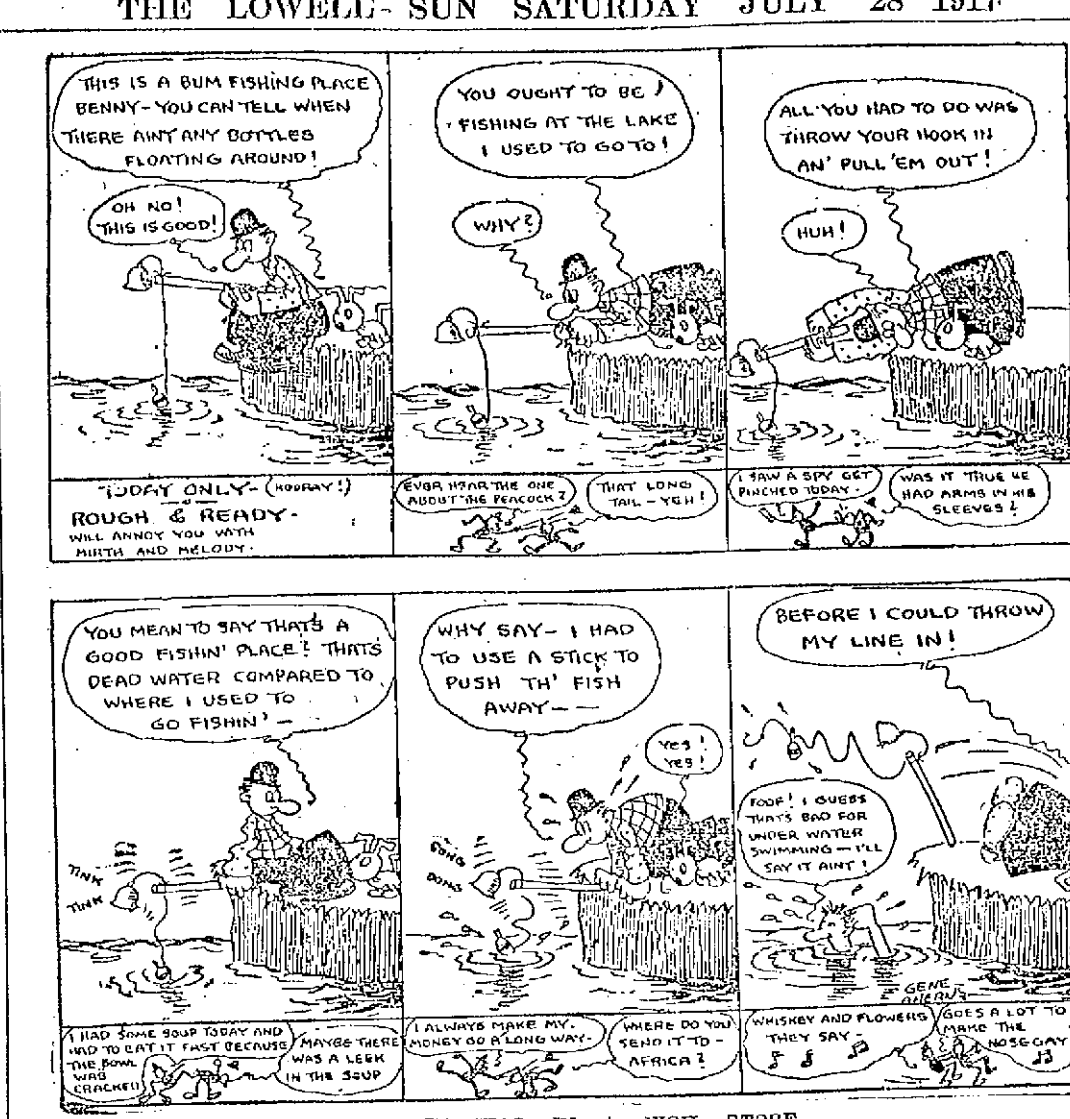

In conversation with the market reporter this morning, George W. Trull spoke enthusiastically of the prospects of the market. He said that the present time was rather inconvenient for many of the farmers to come to the market, but any length of time on account of the haying season, but that the opportunity to sell produce directly to the people was a very good one.

Although it will take a little longer time to get rid of a load of produce than if it were sold in wholesale, the farmers are getting a better price and the people are getting a better quality of goods. Mr. Trull said that the sale would be much more certain and the producers would be sure of a market for all the goods they wished to sell.

At the home of Sarah M. Webster, 116 Sixth street, a bolt hit the chimney and knocked off bricks, but did little other damage. Joseph E. Fay's house at 100 Mt. Pleasant street, received a visit from lightning, it striking the chimney. At the residence of C. H. Hibbard, 62 Brookings street, the chimney was struck and tiles were loosened.

When the second installment of the storm arrived, a bolt struck the house of W. A. Evison, 21 Aberdeen street. One side of the roof was partly struck, and a single tile ending on the second floor was slightly damaged. Mrs. Evison, who was alone in the house at the time, received a severe shock but was not otherwise injured.

Progress in Quincy
Mr. R. W. Merrill, superintendent of the city of Quincy public vegetable market, has sent Mayor O'Donnell a newspaper containing an interesting account of the progress made by the market in that city on its second day.

A portion of the article reads as follows: "Quincy public market, opened for its second day at the Adams Academy this morning at 7 o'clock this morning and during the early hours of the morning the various dealers had a rushing business. It was but a few minutes past 7 o'clock when the first teams loaded with vegetables began to arrive and these men found plenty of customers waiting for them. Some were so anxious to get the first choice of the vegetables offered that they could hardly wait until the teams were unloaded, and the vegetables placed on the booths. Thirty or forty women were on hand for the opening, and there was a constant stream coming and going with baskets on their arms all of the morning. Not only were there many women, but many men were also waiting, and the vegetables were sold out very early in the day. In addition, the market was very profitable. The farmers who had brought their produce to the market were able to make a satisfactory profit. The people who had come to the market were able to get a better quality of goods at a lower price than they could get elsewhere. The market was a great success and it was a very good day for all concerned."
